Sunčana uvala

Lošinj has a tourism tradition that goes back more than 120 years. At the end of the nineteenth century, the Austro-Hungarian government proclaimed Lošinj a climatic spa due to its unique climate and lush vegetation.

The beautiful environment remains untouched to this day, thus nowadays Lošinj is called the island of vitality. Over 200 bottlenose dolphins live in the crystal clear waters of Lošinj's archipelago. Thick pine groves and rich vegetation, consisting of over 1.100 different plants, exude fine aromas, unique to Lošinj. 220 kilometres of cycling and jogging trails ensure high-quality, active holidays and a genuine synergy with Lošinj's restorative nature.

The 2.600 sunny hours per year, only 4 overcast days and temperatures that rarely fall below 7 °C during the coldest winter months, make Lošinj an ideal destination for pleasant, restorative holidays year-round. Lošinj is especially appealing during the spring and autumn months, when nature demonstrates its full flair of colours, tastes and fragrances.

Lošinj is an extremely inspiring natural oasis for anyone who likes to escape crowded, stressful and polluted cities. All it takes to get to Lošinj is a pleasant three to four hour drive from Zagreb, Trieste or Ljubljana.
